GrahamWell, we're in countdown mode now, and it's less than two years until the next president takes the oath of office. But how to manage in the meantime, reading every day about the idiot-in-chief? Pat Bagley combines humor with sound ideas to help you keep your sanity--even though the rest of the world has apparently lost theirs.15 of 19 people found the following review helpful. One of the funniest recent political cartoons collectionsBy reads alotIf you are one of the 49.5% of voting Americans who cast your ballot against Bush and are seeking some comic relief, this book is simply a hilarious gut buster that rightfully should put local Salt Lake newspaper cartoonist Pat Bagley on the national political cartoon map. After having a good laugh with Bagley's biting, sharp-edged humor, it gave me some more heart to move on past the 2004 national election and start thinking about what needs to happen for 2008. E.g. - "Reason" or cartoon #48 is titled "You can't fool all the people all the time - a simple majority will do," followed by a cartoon of a person trying to convince a voter outside a polling place with the speech "Saddam did 9-11 and Bush smoked him out!" Reason or cartoon #23 is "Get drunk with Colin Powell - [and] find out the real poop," followed by cartoon of Powell and an ordinary guy getting drunk with the question "Colin, dude, what happened?" Highly recommended for a quick personal read for comic election relief or as gift for your Democratic friends anytime for the next four years.

Don't despair, it's not the end of the world. Yet. But before you head to Canada, here are 101 clever ideas from The Salt Lake Tribune's award-winning political cartoonist, Pat Bagley. Don't underestimate the catastrophic success of this book. If it is the only thing to make you smile since November, mission accomplished!

About the Author Pat Bagley is the award-winning political cartoonist for The Salt Lake Tribune. His cartoons have also appeared in Time Magazine, The Washington Post, and The Guardian of London. He lives and works in Utah, which voted for Bush in a bigger way than any other state. And you think you have it bad.
