Melissa Powell Gay : Parkland Tales: Stories for 3 a.m. Readings before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Parkland Tales: Stories for 3 a.m. Readings:

Life in Parkland is not always, well, a walk in the park for its residents. It's every animal for himself. Follow the adventures of a quixotic squirrel, a middle-aged deer, a nearsighted owl and others in these tales of life in an overcrowded urban park. For every adult who still likes a grand bedtime story, Parkland Tales, Stories for 3 a.m. Readings is a pleasant distraction on sleepless nights.

About the AuthorMelissa Powell Gay lives in Richmond, Virginia, USA and has never gotten around to adopting a dog or cats. She writes fictional accounts of stories she believes never actually happened. She is the author of When Are You Leaving and Parkland Tales.
