Even reminds me in part of one or another dog I've had in my life. Stubborn, self absorbed and a general cut-up, Poncho is so entertaining and kept me chuckling and laughing throughout the book. Indeed, I once had a dog that didn't come when called, farted around my mother and her friends, and was generally nasty to the cats in and around our neighborhood. Poncho reminds me of dear departed Bruno, a short, barrel-chested half Shepherd with a half droopy ear. Thanks, Mr Gilligan. Thanks a lot!!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. This is an absolutely amazing book and you will love itBy Red BermudaPaull Gillian is a genius. This is an absolutely amazing book and you will love it. Good for all ages. As of this date, I'm still eagerly awaiting a third fourth collection of Gilligan's daily strip: Pooch Cafe.I'm pretty sure he's been cranking them out for two years since "No Collar, No Service" but where's the book?Pooch Cafe is fresh, witty and well-drawn with just the right amount of detail. It's a strip you can fall in love with, much like Calvin Hobbes. The way the various dogs think and act like dogs while still being cynical, English-speaking characters is hilarious. Bring us more books!

Pooch Cafe is creator Paul Gilligan's first syndicated strip, and this book collects the strips from its successful first year of syndication. When Poncho's beloved master Chazz marries cat lover Carmen and forces them to move in with her and her feline brood, Poncho's world is shaken to the core. Carmen's attempts to bribe Poncho with cheese cannot overcome his inexplicable but undeniable disdain for all things cat, and now that his home has become a haven for them, his only recourse is to seek refuge in the cafe, where he, Boomer, and his other canine pals pore over their top-secret plans to construct a giant catapult with which to hurl all the Earth's cats into the sun. As much as he dislikes kitties, he's equally passionate about his love for Chazz. Poncho will do just about anything to keep his position as man's best friend secure, including enduring the physical torments of Chazz's passion for biking, camping, and mountain climbing, which he can only get through with the help of classic Russian literature and a nice cup of tea. Pooch Cafe captures the intensity of the human-dog bond in a way that will resonate with pet lovers everywhere.
