

[PDF] Puns Spoken Here

Puns Spoken Here

Richard Lederer

*ebooks | Download PDF | ePub | DOC | audiobook

DOWNLOAD

+

READ ONLINE

#3968810 in Books Gibbs Smith 2006-07-17Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 6.75 x .44 x 4.251, .21 #File Name: 094171179X192 pages | File size: 48.Mb

Richard Lederer : Puns Spoken Here before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Puns Spoken Here:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. He put the Pun in Fun. What a great collection of witty words. By Brenda L. Hewitt As always Richard Lederer takes the English language one step further. Giving you all the groans you want or need to make a holiday like Halloween all that much more fun. We used this book at Toastmasters to liven up the group last week. Good clean humor for all. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Spooky funny puns and puzzles! By C. Owens What a great little book that spreads a little spooky kooky Halloween magic! Bought a bunch for Halloween gift bags for my daughter and friends this year for Halloween. They LOVED these books. They went over and over these jokes, stories, and puzzles and cracked themselves up all over again. I'll definitely be writing these puns and jokes next year on signs for my annual Halloween party, to add to invitations, notes, and to write on treat bags. Lovely keepsake! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. One Star By Customer Awful

Q. What's a skeleton's favorite food? A. Spare ribs. Q. What was the witch's favorite subject in school? A. Spelling. Q. What kind of horse does a ghost ride? A. A night mare. Q. How does an exorcist keep in shape? A. He rides an exorcycle.

From the Back Cover From New York Times best-selling author and linguist Richard Lederer comes this fun little book packed with puns, riddles, jokes, games, stories, and more! What do you call an empty hot dog? A hollow weenie. Why did the vampire join the police force? So he could learn how to get a stake out. What's the favorite food of mathematicians? Pumpkin pie. How did Mr. Hyde celebrate Halloween? With a Jekyll lantern. Puns Spoken Here is the perfect gift for all your fiends and the other little goblins in your life. About the Author Richard Lederer is the author of more than 35 books about language, history, and humor, including his best-selling Anguished English series. He is founding cohost of A Way with Words on public radio and his syndicated column, "Looking at Language," appears in newspapers and magazines throughout the United States. He lives in San Diego. Excerpt. © Reprinted by permission. All rights reserved. You may well have heard the seasonal prey upon words "What do you call an empty hot dog?" Answer: A hollow weenie. But you may not have realized how capacious is the tricky treat bag of Halloween puns. There's something about the lore of Halloween that inspires tour de farces at the highest level of punnery. What this book will offer you is a veritable Bill of Frights. Punnery is largely the trick of compacting two or more ideas within a single word or expression. Punnery challenges us to apply the greatest pressure per square syllable of language. Punnery surprises us by flouting the law of nature that pretends that two things cannot occupy the same space at the same time. Punnery is an exercise of the mind at being concise. Punnery is a rewording experience. Let's start by cooking up a punderful menu for Halloween. I know you won't be able to resist goblin up this full-corpse meal. Bone appetit!