Great Christmas gift for the rabbit lover in your life with a sense of humor.By Wildfire78Great Christmas gift for the rabbit lover in your life with a sense of humor. Cute illustrations and stories that can truly be appreciated by anyone who has ever owned a house rabbit.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Good readBy freespiritGood read2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Cute little bookBy Carlos SempereThis is a fun book for people already familiar with rabbit behavior; you'll find yourself chuckling at the author's experiences because you'll know exactly what she's talking about. I wouldn't recommend it as a behavioral guide for a new rabbit owner - you'll still enjoy it, but as entertainment, rather than as a scientific resource.

Rabbit Language or "Are you going to eat that?" Second Edition, is a humorous guide to communicating with one's pet rabbit and the perfect gift for those who share their home with a rabbit. The book is the original guide to rabbit behavior, which has spawned many imitators. Rabbits are quite different from cats and dogs and can be hard to understand. Rabbits make fabulous pets but are not for everyone. Hopefully this book will help illuminate that. The book is a light-hearted yet informative guide to annoying behavior and an essential library addition for rabbit owners.

My wife and I, who have 2 rabbits, found this book to be very accurate and amusing. This book talks about different behavioral patterns of rabbits, and what they mean. I recommend this for anybody who gets a new bunny for a household pet. The author has spent 20 years living with rabbits, and her experience clearly shows. I knew about a lot of the things that she explained, but she definitely filled us in on some areas of bunny behavior that we were in the dark about. The color illustrations are excellent! Darien Summers, author of The Mischievous Hare, a children's book. From the Back Cover The perfect gift for those who share their home with a rabbit. About the Author The author and illustrator, Carolyn Crampton, is a well-known fine artist based in San Francisco. She is also an award-winning graphic designer and a faculty member of Ex'pression College. Crampton has kept rescued rabbits for over thirty years and provides email counseling to frantic pet owners. Currently she lives with two rescued rabbits who both seem to enjoy posing as models in her drawings and paintings. The illustrations for 'Rabbit Language or Are you going to eat that' were completed from life in ink and ink wash and later colored using a limited palette in Photoshop. Crampton is also the illustrator of the children's book 'Dumbunny' released in 2014.
