Edwina Coltharp White : Twin tracks before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Twin tracks:

The adventures of "Weenie and Glenna" are from another time, yet ageless. Their time was special. As parents of twins have said forever, "What one doesn't think of, the other one will," - wisdom which provides the fertile ground for double-rich experiences. For those of us who grew up in those times, our neighborhoods, with the special people and pets, were our special universe. In those times, not too different from Huck Finn's, the world was small and close, and it took a world-sized war or a twenty-mile trip to another town to intrude on our lives. The lessons of trust, honesty, love, hate, and fear, coupled with the healing and loving effects of laughter and friendship, are as clear in the stories as the times were simple. To those of us who can relate to the time as well as the stories, they bring warm remembrances - some happy and some sad, but always pleasurable. The younger reader can relate to the themes in a newer, faster-paced world, perhaps begrudging the simpler times but realizing that the same childhood lessons are being learned each day. All who take the time to enjoy the stories will find themselves marveling at the similarities with their own childhoods. Edwina taught many years in the Texas public schools. She has been a college speech and theater instructor and is active in community theater and community work. She, and her husband Thomas, presently live at Pecan Run Farm on Richland - Chambers Creek Lake a few miles south of Kerens, Texas. During her professional career, she has made many contributions. Her greatest gift to us, however, is Twin Tracks. - Gerald E. Burson, Ed. D.
