Darren Paul : Watching Angels before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Watching Angels:

Darren and Jill are two happy go lucky people who live life to the max without caring about tomorrow or saving money in the bank. When Darren is struck down and given 28 days to live, can he safeguard his wife's lifestyle or will she end up penniless in the end? God sends Darren's Guardian Angel to help him plan and execute a bank robbery with the help of Hollywood Actor Jason Statham also in tow. Chased across USA by Satan and his Hordes from Hell, they must reach a castle in the City of Angels by Christmas Eve.

About the Author Born in Belfast, Northern Ireland in 1971, Darren Paul is married with no children, but does have 3 cats. For the last 20yrs he has worked for a number of security companies and is now employed as a Security Manager for a multi national Retail Company. He has two books of Poems published and working on a third. He enjoys watching many different television programmes and films from 1920's to present day. An avid reader of Military, History, Religion, Science, his first book brings all of these subjects together under one title. This first book brings together his uncertainty in the world and the wider universe, his constant battle in himself between good and evil and his doubt in himself.
