Chris Morris, Peter Cook : Why Bother? (BBC Radio Collection) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Why Bother? (BBC Radio Collection):

PinderTwo of my favourite comedic minds team up here for one of Cook's last performances. Morris, of On The Hour/The Day Today/Brass Eye fame is quick-witted and has a brilliantly honed interviewing style. Cook's Sir Arthur has moments of genuine pathos talking about his fictional past amidst the brilliant rejoinders and story-telling. Truly Cook at his best. This recording of 5 radio 4 interviews is sadly underrated.

These five interviews recall Streeb-Greebling's early years (sent to prison at the age of four by his father) and his life before and after the incident with the eels.
