About the AuthorThe world has plenty of great artists, smarter writers, wiser philosophers and more experienced business people. The rare thing about me is that each of those skills are part of the same one person. Hi, I am Julian Blau, an Best-Selling illustrator-author, self-taught multimedia artist and photographer with a lot of love for life. This means that I am passionate about fashion, interesting food, adventurous travel journeys and all those crazy little things that you want to enjoy in such a way that you can tell your grandchildren about. Growing up with a passion for art, I used to create greeting cards for friends and family before moving on to study animation and game design at the University of Bedfordshire. I've always loved art, particularly creating things that children enjoy. I even developed a mobile app to teach young children about history in a fun way for my dissertation at university. I always dreamed of publishing a book, it was one of my deepest wishes. But I could never publish anything before because of the upfront cost. Now, wit POD I don't have to pay anything and I can publish as many books as my mind can create. Ranging from butterflies, abstract to Halloween Illustrations, I started to produce book since the beginning of 2016. In parallel, I have been a photographer and admin for the fashion blog LorenneBlau.com for almost three years, I get in love with the industry and straight after I finished the University in Animation and Game Design I choose to take it on my path and build a job instead of finding a job. After one year of intense work here we are, TheBaffledMan was born. The best description of that kind of lifestyle and for what you are going to find here is: "Dress like JFK, speak like Hemingway, work like Ralph Lauren and party like Gatsby!"
