I believe Joelle has the sense of humor and talent to be the next great Erma. Thank you for the laughs and honesty about life's adventures. Can't wait for the next one!1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. my eyes hurt from crying and I am pretty sure I have cracked a couple of ribs as ...By Elizabeth PetersenI started reading it tonight. Lisa had to pause the TV several times because of my laughing, my eyes hurt from crying and I am pretty sure I have cracked a couple of ribs as well as wet myself from laughing uncontrollably. If you need a good laugh, you are a mother, you travel or just want to laugh out loud and cry because something is so damn funny, this book is for you.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. I kept my husband up with my laughing.By HilEverything in this book is so relatable. I tried limiting myself to one chapter at a time to "make it last" but always found it hard to put down. It's great to keep handy to read and re-read when the need for a little humor arises! It definitely left me wanting more.

"Boy am I glad I'm not in the second grade. My 'Fifty Shades of Grey' diorama project would have been a doozy." You could say that Joelle Casteix has it all: a filthy home, cellulite, and a never-ending parade of laundry, chaos and poop. And she wouldn't have it any other way. Her laugh-out-loud-funny musings on life, parenting, travel, and home started as Facebook status updates. Soon, her hilarious "Yes, my son" posts developed a fan base of their own. Hailed a "a hell of a writer" by The OC Weekly, Joelle has compiled these wildly popular posts into a raucous and delightful book. Life is funny. Kids are funny. Marriage, home, cars, and diets are funny. Joelle Casteix will make you laugh about all of it.

About the AuthorJoelle Casteix is a humorist, author, speaker, and (most importantly) mom. In her day job, she is a leading national "in the trenches" expert on the prevention and exposure of child sex abuse and cover-up. She lives in California with her husband and son.
